

ATTENTION SCHOOLS AND TEACHERS!

Are you looking for an engaging way to provide high school students with sexual health education that covers important topics like media influence, consent, and healthy relationships?

Do you want to ensure that all your students receive the same medically-accurate info while at the same time meeting educational standards?

You and your high school students could be part of a research study to evaluate a web-based comprehensive sexual health program that is based in media literacy education!

The Media Aware High School Study is being conducted by innovation Research & Training (iRT) to further evaluate an evidence-informed sexual health program for 9th and 10th grade students.

iRT is looking to partner with high schools to offer free access to the Media Aware program in a small number of classrooms that participate in an evaluation study.

WHAT ARE THE POSSIBLE INCENTIVES FOR PARTICIPATING?

- Access to an innovative educational program
 - $1000 for participating schools
- Up to $250 for teachers of participating classrooms
 - Small incentives for participating students

If you are interested in learning more, please see our website:
mediaawareprograms.com

Or contact:

Elyse Keefe, MPH, MSW
iRT Research Specialist
919-493-7700 Ext. 120 | ekeefe@irtinc.us

